The Golden Rule

The apostle Peter warned, "...[Paul's] letters contain some things that are hard to understand, which ignorant and unstable people distort, as they do the other Scriptures, to their own destruction" (2 Pet. 3:16b NIV).

The Bible contains an example of distorting the Scriptures. Satan used Psalm 91:11-12 when he tempted Jesus to jump from the highest point of the temple (Matt. 4:5-6; Luke 4:9-11). The devil said that this passage promised Jesus a safe landing on angels' wings. Jesus proved the devil's misuse of the Psalm by quoting Deuteronomy 6:16; "Do not put the Lord your God to the test" (Matt. 4:7 NIV).

Sarah Kate Ellis, President and CEO of GLAAD (Gay and Lesbian Alliance Against Defamation), said last week in an interview with USA Today concerning pan sexuality (attraction to all people whether they identify as straight, gay, transgender, gender neutral, etc.), "The golden rule, honestly, is to call someone how they identify."

Since the 18th century, Jesus' statement ["So in everything, do to others what you would have them do to you, for this sums up the Law and the Prophets," (Matt. 7:12 NIV)] has been known as the Golden Rule. Did Ms. Ellis apply this passage correctly and find a biblical basis for accepting all varieties of sexuality, or has she distorted Scripture?

Using Jesus' method and the words of the Golden Rule itself, if Ellis's interpretation is right, then the rest of Scripture must agree with it. The Law, however, condemns male homosexual behavior; "Do not have sexual relations with a man as one does with a woman; that is detestable" (Lev. 18:22 NIV). The Law also condemns transsexual behavior; "A woman must not wear men's clothing, nor a man wear women's clothing, for the LORD your God detests anyone who does this" (Deut. 22:5 NIV).

It would seem that the Golden Rule, therefore, would demand just the opposite interpretation from Ellis's. It would demand that one not accept sexual sins in others, but call those who commit them to repentance (1 Cor. 6:9-11).
